The French Occupation of the Ruhr: 1923

Daniel Fitzpatrick, St. Louis Dispatch, 1930

The cartoon depicts the Versailles Treaty as a large pipe from which a man wearing a hat labeled 'FART' is crawling out. This is a satirical reference to the perceived weakness and perceived lack of honor of the treaty. The man's muscular build and crawling posture suggest a man of strength who is being forced into a humiliating position. The text 'Versailles Treaty' is written on the pipe, and the man's hat has 'FART' written on it. The cartoon is signed 'D. Fitzpatrick' in the bottom right corner.
