Ideal Government

Trust People to Govern?

Hobbes		People are born evil; need strong government that can control desires of people (Leviathan)
King Louis IX		God chose him (Divine Right), blessed by Roman Catholic church; great leader (Sun King), France grew, great palace, controlled nobles
Queen Elizabeth I		Divine Right also; a mother to her people, listened to Parliament, but she wanted final say; loved by her people, successful monarch
Plato		Ruler should be skilled—just, knowledgeable (philosopher king); feared mob rule (killed Socrates, his teacher)
Aristotle		1 st choice-educated middle class rule; 2 nd choice-king advised by philosophers
Montesquieu		Limit power of king by separating power w/ 3 branches-executive, legislative, judicial; checks & balances
Locke		People are born w/ inalienable rights and can make decisions for themselves
Rousseau		People born good; it is society that corrupts them by giving titles, live in small community where people decide what is best for themselves
Wollstonecraft		All people should have a voice, even women; frustrated that only men could own property, rule over the family affairs, work so refused marriage for a long time; wanted women and men to vote

Oligarchy

People are born greedy and selfish;
therefore a strong, autocratic government is required.

Prompt: To what extent did Enlightenment philosophies challenge established political, economic, social and religious patterns?

Thesis: The most Enlightenment philosophers questioned long held structures that justified autocracy supported by Divine Right. But the Enlightenment continued the humanists' resurrection of Greek Rationalists' principles.
